This November issue of Milestones in Medical Education, is the last issue before we bid farewell to the year 2016. It is an issue that comes at a time where we are entering the two months of Holidays. Last week we celebrated Halloween with its magical time and Harry Potter wizardry theme. Over the next two months we will celebrate several holidays, times to give thanks for all the hard work that our learners, faculty, and staff give to the Medical Education mission. Holidays are certainly a time to reconnect with family. And as we say goodbye to 2016, we reflect on a year of academic successes and look forward to a New Year of continued successes and Holiday resolutions.

I reflect back on 2016, and I realize how many proud milestones have been reached in our Medical Education journey. 2016 was a year where we recruited new classes of residents and fellows and graduated the Class of 2016. 2016 was a year where the Advanced Pediatric Care Pavilion (APCP) was completed and the institution completed a seamless move to the newly occupied facility. 2016 was a year where we currently embarked on another recruitment season to recruit the new classes of residents and fellows. Last but not least, 2016 was a great year where many of our residents and fellows continued to showcase their scholarly work in national meetings and in print.

As we welcome this holiday season let us make what is left of 2016 a time for celebration and reflection. Let us celebrate the successes, reflect on the accomplishments and the goals not achieved, learn from the last year, and set resolutions for our upcoming year. Let us set action plans to continue to strive for improvement, success, and excellence. As Nelson Mandela said: “Remember to celebrate milestones as you prepare for the road ahead”.
